

10 'Costliest' Masterpieces

This Is the Art That Has Topped the Auctions

Hals' "Portrait of a Cavalier"—$509,600.

Rembrandt's "Portrait of the Artist's Son Titus"—$2,234,400.

Rembrandt's "Aristotle Contemplating the Bust of Homer"—$2,300,000.

If you have an urge to bid on a masterpiece that will rank among the top ten most expensive paintings auctioned in modern times, you'd better be prepared to spend more than half a million dollars.

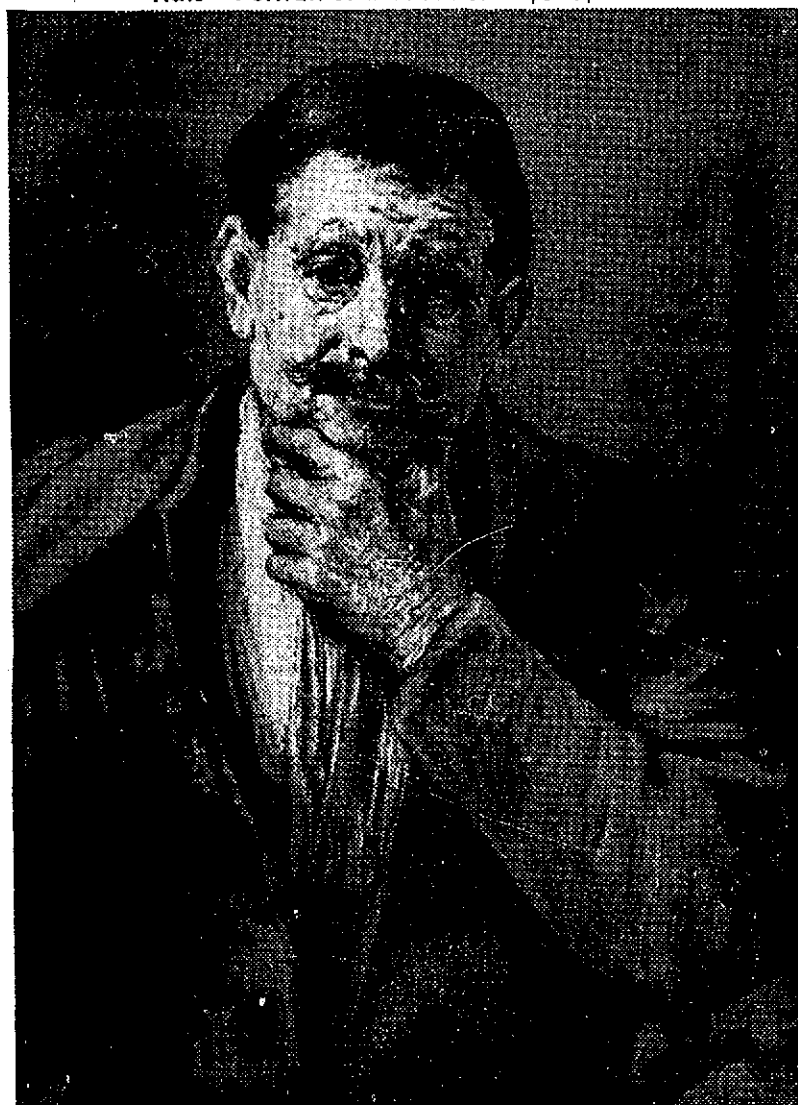

Prime examples seldom reach the auction block any more. Most of the really important Old Masters already have been frozen forever on museum walls, and even the big moderns are hard to find. The few smashing pictures that come out of private collections into the market are fought over at great costs.

The Old Masters who have been cracking through the auction ceilings in recent years are Rembrandt, Hals, Fragonard and Rubens. The School of Paris (Impressionists and Post-Impressionists) is not far behind.

Auctions are only partial index to the feverish competition for important paintings, which has been shaking the art world ever since the end of World War II, especially in the last decade. Private transactions between dealers and collectors or museums, which are quite confidential, undoubtedly have surpassed some of the auction prices, but the financial figures are shrouded in discreet silence.

Here are the top ten paintings auctioned at Parke-Bernet (New York), Sotheby's (London), Christie's (London) and Palais Galliera (Paris).

Rembrandt's "Saint Bartholemew"—$532,000.

Hals' "The Merry Lute Player"—$600,000.

Cezanne's "Maisons à L'Estaque"—$800,000.

Fragonard's "La Liseuse"—$875,000.

Cezanne's "Garçon au Gilet Rouge"—$616,000.

Rubens' "Adoration of the Magi"—$770,000.

Monet's "Sur la Falaise, Madame Monet et son fils Jean"—$515,340.

WIN AT BRIDGE

South Skill Wins Reward

By JACOBY & SON
1965 Vanderbilt Cup Winners
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Here's a new type of bridge problem. Look over all the cards and see if you can figure out how Chicago expert Eddie Rosen managed to make four hearts without the benefit of any unusual help from his opponents.

Getting to four hearts was quite a problem to start. Eddie's double of two diamonds was primarily for takeout and North respected his wishes enough to go to two hearts as the least of the several evils he thought he faced. Eddie's jump to four wasn't too much of a gamble. All he really needed was to find his partner with the jack of clubs. Strangely enough, East's jack of clubs turned out to be his undoing.

East played the king of diamonds and continued with the ace. Eddie ruffed and led the queen of clubs. West ducked and East made the mistake of letting his low club go. Eddie's next play was the king of hearts. East won and led a third diamond which Eddie ruffed high.

Then he cashed two high trumps in order to pull the opponents' teeth. Next came the ace and king of spades, followed by a low club. Poor East had to win the trick with the jack and had to lead a diamond to give dummy tricks with the queen of spades and jack of diamonds. That particular queen-jack combination is worth 40 points in pinochle. It was worth 620 points in this bridge situation.

Note that East could have beaten the hand by leading the jack of clubs when he got in with the ace of trumps, and that if West had simply grabbed his ace of clubs when Eddie led the queen, the contract would have been set.

HELEN HELP US!

Youth Asked For It
This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help US!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help US!, this newspaper.

To Catch A Husband

Dear Helen: I generally applaud your answers, but I couldn't agree with you less on your reply to Undecided who thought she'd become a nurse because interns are good husband material. You said, "You're hooked on Dr. Kildare. . . Hospitals aren't anxious to hire girls who care more for prospective than patients." That's smug and helpful.

"The 'right man' doesn't just automatically happen to a girl — she has to plan and calculate and angle, just as a man does in planning his career."

If Undecided were my daughter I would say:
Marriage is your aim in life, honey, and don't ever be ashamed of it. Make up your mind early what kind of wife-life you want and then go after it. Build up the kind of accomplishments that will attract a doctor (if you want a doctor) or a rising executive. Choose a college that specializes in the male careers of your interest. Join a sorority if you can afford it. If not, pick up your education through evening classes. Many men of modest background and sound ambition will be your classmates. Indulge yourself in a wide variety of hobbies and clubs. If a group is hopelessly lacking in attractive young men, drop it! Marriage is your aim in life, not collecting rocks or playing tennis.

Take a careful school course. Go all out to be popular. Find the career that will bring you in contact with the kind of man you want. Study a wide range of male career books, and find the girl careers that parallel to them. Talk to a lot of wives and find the disadvantages too.

Don't be afraid to say you are looking for a husband when you are around an eligible man. If he drops you because of your ambitions, so what? He isn't marriage-minded. Why waste your time? Get engaged or married friends to introduce to attractive men. Be honest in saying you want marriage for a career, but never admit you are in a certain line of work merely to find a man. Plenty of jealous people will say that for you, but while some will be shocked at your forthright husband-hunting, others will be admiring. Toss your proud head high; flirt, even — no, especially! with strangers, but stay out of reach until you find Mr. Right. It's any girl's goal to make the best marriage.

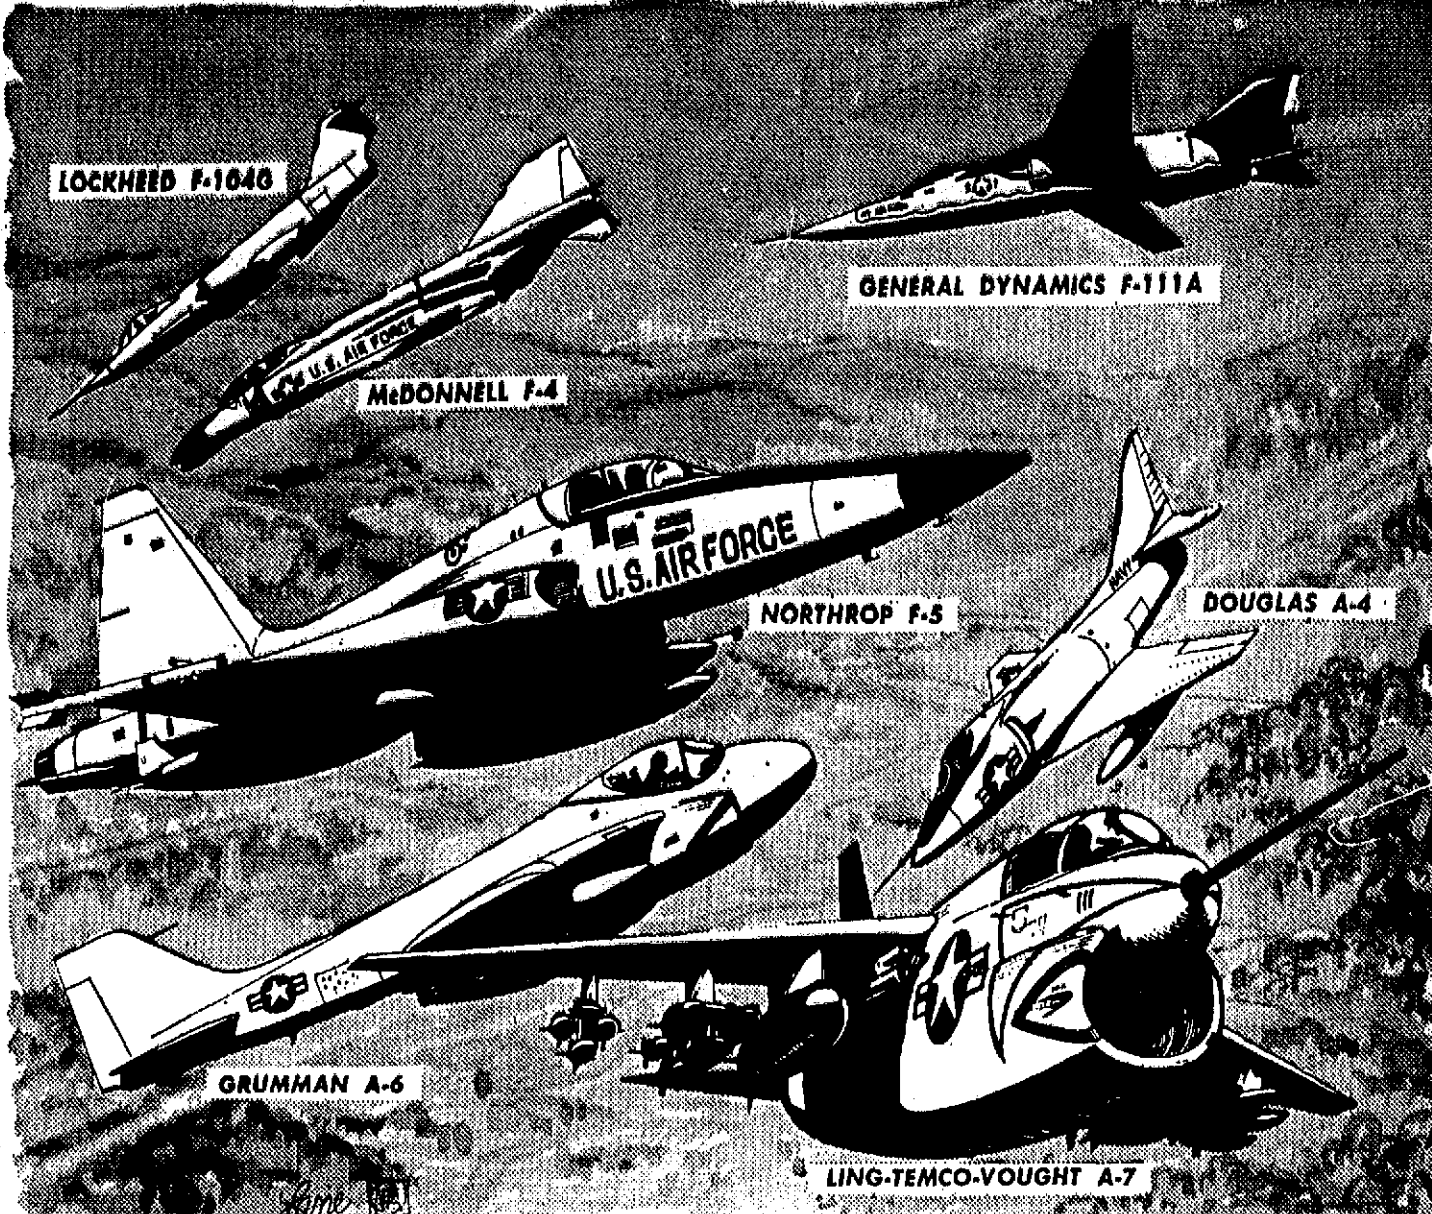

Let's face it, Undecided wants a husband, not a career. This practical girl asked, "Is it true more doctors marry nurses, as I want the best marriage, and you never see a poor doctor." Now what do you say? — E. S.

SCRAMBLE OVER VIET NAM—Increased use of air power in Viet Nam has caught the United States with its warplanes down. To fill the gap until a new model called the FX is ready by 1970-71, the search is underway for an interim fighter. It will be a modification of one or more existing planes to fill the specialized requirements of the Viet Nam fighting. Leading contenders are the F-5 "Freedom Fighter," developed as a small and simple fighter for NATO allies, and the Navy's all-weather A-6 and subsonic A-7. Others are the Navy's workhorse A-4 and deadly F-4 Phantom and the Air Force's 1,400-m.p.h. F-104 Starfighter. One result of this new need has been a cutback in planned production of the TFX, or F-111, shown in upper-right corner. The all-service F-111, whose wings fold or extend in flight, is under development in bomber and reconnaissance versions as well as land-based and carrier-based fighter models.

"April Fool's Day"

"April Fool's Day" is said to have originated in France in 1564, when the reformed calendar was adopted, confusing everybody. From this confusion stems the modern custom of playing harmless tricks and jokes.

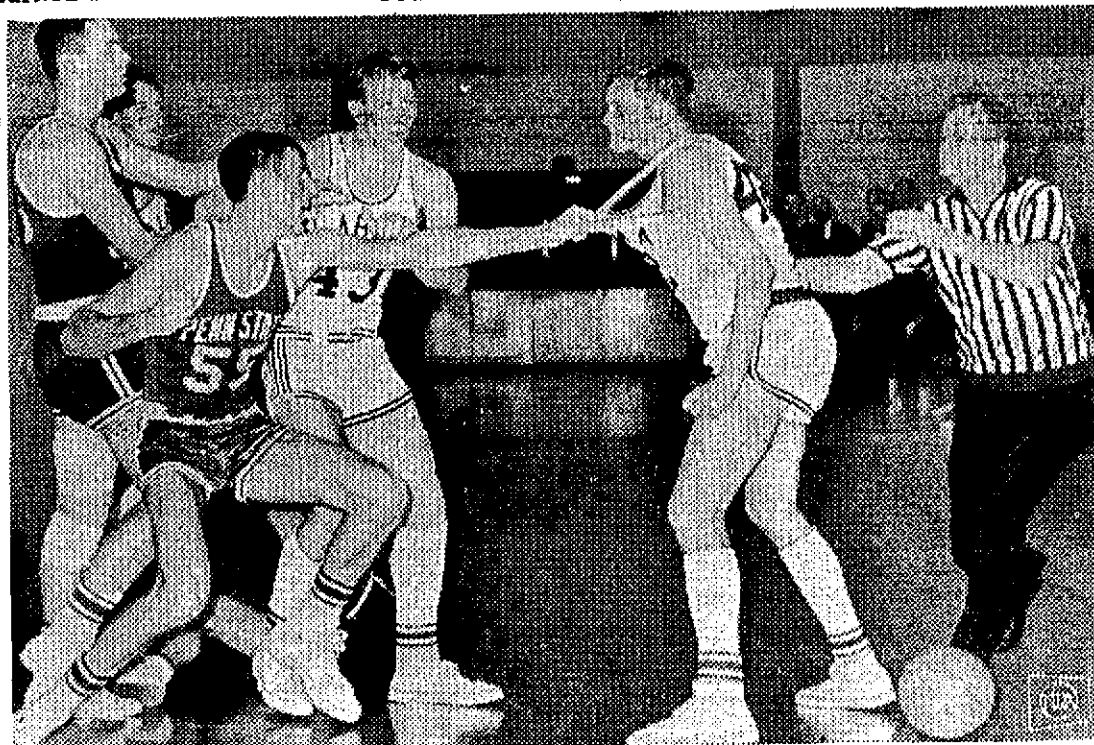

"Five Nations"

The Iroquois Indian tribes which belonged to the confederacy known as the "Five Nations" were the Mohawk, Oneida, Onondaga, Cayuga and Seneca, who once occupied upper New York State.

Dear E: I'd give her points for being a forthright phony, and still say she'd probably never get past the entrance exam. Haven't you heard, E. S., SOME girls seek careers because they are interested in the work and know they are needed? Those who seek wealthy, eligible doctors should merely break a leg. — H.

Dear Helen: Is it true that some cosmetic companies will pay money for a two-inch fingernail? — Grower

Dear Grower: My teenage neighbor says, "Yes, and you should write to one of the big companies for details." Frankly I'm not about to research this further. I've bothered by professional friends with a lot of embarrassing questions put to me by readers, but I will NOT call a cosmetic firm and ask, "Hey there, are you in the market for two-inch fingernails?" Does anyone know for sure? — H.

Socialites Wear Actionwear for "Night in St. Moritz"

by Helen Hennessy, Newspaper Enterprise Women's Editor
NEW YORK—(NEA)—On January 7, New York's Tavern on the Green will be transformed into a miniature St. Moritz. An artificial ice rink will be constructed and more than 400 multicolored lights will be strung from trees surrounding it. The tavern will become a huge chalet.

The occasion will be the annual "Night in St. Moritz" supper dance held for the benefit of Guideposts for Children, an organization sponsoring a program at Lenox Hill Hospital to help mentally disturbed youngsters.

All the socially prominent guests will come in apres ski wear. "That's why we have no trouble getting the men to come," committee chairman Mrs. Clyde Newhouse (the former Maggi McNellis), told me over lunch at Voisin's.

"They hate to get into formal clothes for these charity balls. At this one they're comfortable."

But this "informal" gala will be jam-packed with fashion.

only one shoulder covered and no back," Maggi Newhouse said. "We'll have to give that girl cold pills."

Two of the designs were modeled at a recent party held at the Park Avenue apartment-museum of the late Helena Rubinstein. They were rather elegant examples of "informality."

Mrs. Clifford Brokaw III wore Jo Copeland's raspberry jumpsuit with cowl neck and Pamela Zauderer (Mrs. Peter Duchin's sister) wore Jean Louis' white actionwear ski costume with hood trimmed in white fake fur.

The coming big occasion may be a great outdoor clambake, but the prelude raising party at Rubinstein's was an indoor festival. It was a gala with all the fixin's—swinging orchestra, good food, generous libations and beautiful socialites wearing about half a million in jewels and furs.

Glamorous Maggi McNellis Newhouse was there in Roxanne's cherry velvet suit lined in gold tissue lame. The Princess Borghese was beautiful in silver and black brocade and Jo Copeland was an eye-ful in black chiffon and white mink.

Mrs. Denniston Slater's black lace was the perfect setting for a diamond and emerald clip about the size of a traffic light. And Marian Preminger was there in a white mink hat, dark brown dress and her medals.

Borden Stevenson was among the men who did get into their dinner jackets for this party.

One mink-clad guest accidentally set fire to another in white lace, but everyone parted good friends.

Maggi Newhouse works on many committees, but this is the only one she chairs and the only charity affair she organizes completely herself.

"I like what the Guideposts for Children is doing," she said. "These people not only treat the emotionally disturbed youngsters, but go into the homes to teach the parents how to cope with the problem."

"Fifty per cent of all hospital beds are occupied by mental, not physical, cripples and I want to help lessen that number in any way I can."

"A Night in St. Moritz" will be a success if Maggi puts her mind to it. After all, she's the gal who taught the Duke of Windsor to do the frug and the only visitor to John Paul Getty's Sutton Place mansion in England who was allowed to use his private phone instead of the famous pay phone booth he installed for guests.

Photographed at the apartment of the late Helena Rubinstein, socialite Pamela Zauderer (left) wears the white Actionwear costume designed for the "Night in St. Moritz" benefit by Jean Louis. Mrs. Clifford W. Brokaw III wears pink jumpsuit created by Jo Copeland.

POSITIVE APPROACH—John F. Kennedy Jr. may have taken a few falls, but he's right back up again and ready to try another time.

FATAL BLAZE—A four-alarm fire sweeping through an old hotel at St. Paul, Minn., claimed at least 10 lives with many injured. Most of the occupants of the Carleton Hotel were permanent residents.

What's The Weather?

This is a New Year and only God knows how much of good or bad will blow our way. The weather vane knows no difference between the points of the compass. Her job is to look straight ahead into whatever winds that blow... and the more severe the wind pressure the greater her accuracy. That's our lesson. God also tries us by pushing strong winds into our face, by laying blocks in our path and by shoving temptations before us. Then let us face up to His test. This way He finds out those who love Him; those who seek Heaven; and those who support His Church. Like the weather bird... resign your will to God.

You In The Church
The Church In You — form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.

It Is Paid For By Firms Who Hope To Measure Their Reward In Greater Number Of People Attending Church.

Vindication Motivated Packers

GREEN BAY, Wis.—(NEA)—Before the Green Bay Packers won their ninth National Football League championship, six men on their starting offensive unit might have retired or had other football employment forced upon them.

Tackle Forrest Gregg, who is 31 years old with the scars of nine pro years, walked to the sidelines with 31 seconds to go and bells ringing in his ears, where a knee had caught his helmet. "How," he asked later, "do you quit after this?"

Rather than elation, the veteran Packers—with an experience quotient of 7.4 years for every man in their attacking platoon—felt vindication in their decisive title victory over the Cleveland Browns.

They had a halfback, Paul Hornung, who couldn't outrun a linebacker, Cleveland's Jim Houston, when he had an open field for a touchdown stretching ahead. But he outgained Jimmy Brown better than 2-1. A fullback like Jimmy Taylor (who barely shades 200 pounds, isn't supposed to bowl people over, but he did and won a sports car. Bart Starr seldom answers the roll call when the great quarterbacks are mentioned, but his passing opened up the Browns' linebackers for the 204 yards on the ground which controlled the game.

Hornung played with bruised ribs, a sore knee and a weak ankle. Taylor, drawn and underweight, had a groin pull, a sore ankle and later bumped his knee. Starr had his ribs and back taped tightly and got banged down a couple of times by defensive end Bill Glass of the Browns.

Yet, at the end, they were all in one piece and the Packers had their first championship since 1957.

"This," said coach Vince Lombardi, "may not be the best Packers team I've ever had, but it's a team of great character. I don't think they had to prove it to me so much. I think other people had to accept it."

Some won't even accept the Packers as anything more than the third best team in the NFL (behind the Baltimore Colts plus John Unitas and the Chicago Bears minus opening month).

"After six or seven years," shrugged Hornung, "you have between you'm'me

In this IBM era of pro football, games are still won the simple way. At halftime against Cleveland they barely led, 13-12. The only way to control the Browns was to slog it out on the ground.

They made a basic adjustment, born of experience. The offensive linemen asked Starr to run a couple of plays that didn't figure strongly in the game plan. One was a strong side off-tackle play, called simply 47, with Hornung carrying. The other was a 41 trap up the middle. The "4" indicates Hornung. The "7" and "1" indicate the holes. "We went back to simplified stuff," explained Lombardi. "We have a slogan (Lombardi's big on them) that says, 'It's neither the offensive alignments nor the defensive formation which means anything. It's the execution.'"

First time the Packers got the ball in the third quarter, they executed for 90 yards on nine ground plays, with a couple of judicious passes tossed in. Hornung swept the left side for the last 13 and right there the Packers were again the champions of Pete Rozelle's NFL universe.

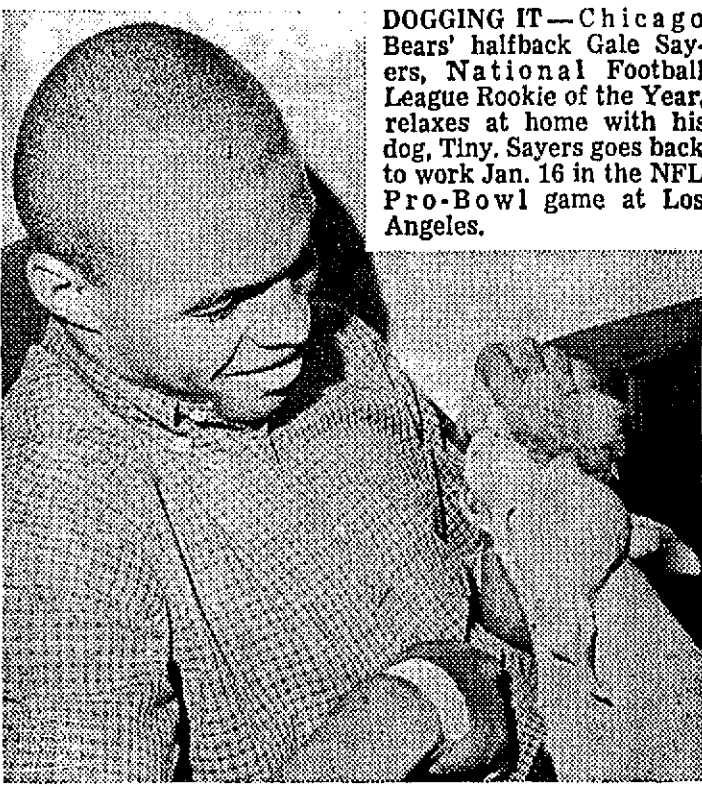

To accept a little criticism. The biggest thing I can say about this team, they don't make the big mistake. They don't give away the easy touchdown.

"But this has been the hardest year for a championship team I can remember, physically and mentally."

"Real frustrating," echoed Starr. "We've had our problems this year offensively."

But the walking wounded of Green Bay proved that even

Snowmobile Safari

By WM. TAYLOR McKEOWN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

ASPEN, COLO.—(NEA)—Twenty-two years ago, the goal of their winter sport was to stay alive in the snow.

Pete Seibert, Bob Parker and John Wix were training for combat with the 10th Mountain Division at Camp Hale, high in the Rockies of Colorado. Over 1,000 from that famous division are war casualty names on a marble plaque near Camp Hale, now another ghost town up where the hills are snowbound six months every year.

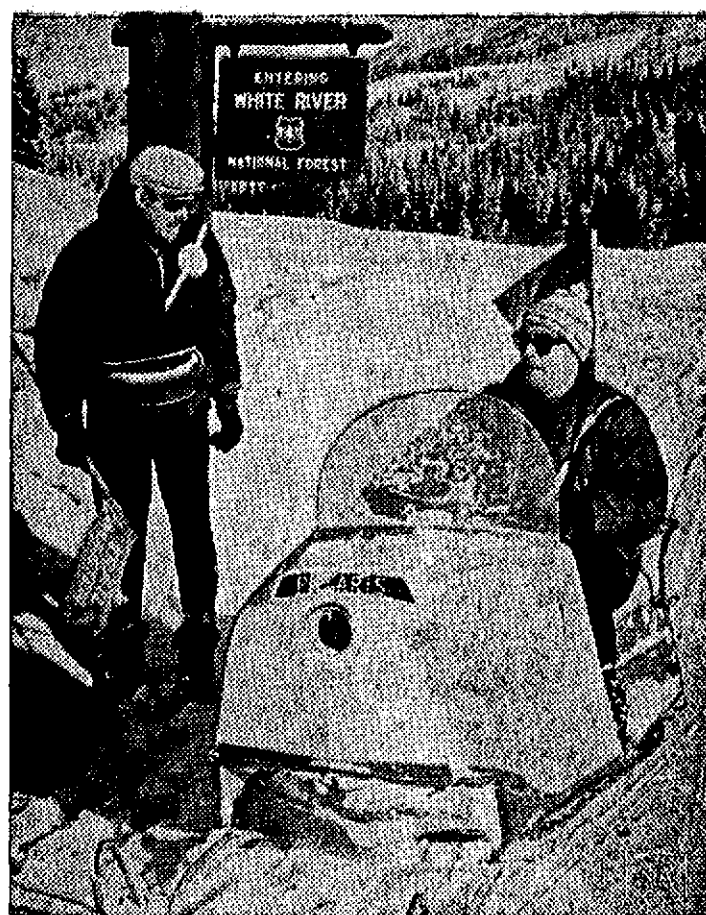

Pete, Bob and John came back from the war, but they didn't go home again. The mountains had got them. They returned to the tiny town of Aspen, near their training slopes, to teach skiing. Wix stayed on in Aspen while Seibert and Parker crossed the Continental Divide to found another famous ski resort named Vail.

"In the Army we'd learned you don't have to be afraid of the cold," Parker recalls. "With good instruction and equipment you can tackle the highest, coldest hills and enjoy magnificent snow scenery along the way."

To prove it, Seibert and Parker have just tried a test safari with the newest gadget for mechanized mountain climbing. It's called the snowmobile—a 14-horsepower motorscooter with skis in front and a little revolving track under the seat. Driving is like ski-schussing sitting down. The gadget will climb hills or run 30 miles an hour through deep powder snow.

"Kneel on the seat to run it," Parker recommends, "or sit down if you're brave. Steer with the handlebars but lean your body into turns on a slope as if you're skiing."

For graduation of their first snowmobile class after only an afternoon of instruction, Seibert and Parker led a group of 25 of us on a 90-mile, two-day trek. Up we motored from the drifts at Vail's 8,200 feet, up through snow squalls in the thin air to the 13,000-foot mountain ridgepole that divides the Atlantic and Pacific watersheds. Our machines crossed the Continental Divide five times in all, with an overnight stop 10,000 feet up at Leadville, the nation's highest city.

Even at 14,000 elevation, high above the timberline, the machines and drivers gasped along without any trouble. Then from the top of Independence Pass we bucked drifts down 4,000 feet to Aspen and a welcome from John Wix and Buzz Bainbridge of the famous ski center.

Snowmobiles aren't going to replace skis for sportsmen or soldiers, ex-trooper Pete Seibert decided after the run.

"But they should open up the high snowfields to supervised tour groups," according to Pete, "where you can safely explore areas only a few mountaineers have ever seen in the winter before."

Sayers Wins Bert Bell Award

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor

Newspaper Enterprise Association

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Gale Sayers, phenomenal halfback of the Chicago Bears, was named today by Newspaper Enterprise Association as the winner of the second annual Bert Bell Award.

It goes to the outstanding rookie in the National Football League and is chosen by an official poll of the 14 head coaches.

The only surprise in this year's voting is that the record-smashing climax runner of the Bears didn't get unanimous accord from the coaches. He received 12 first place votes.

His own teammate, linebacker Dick Butkus, edged him on a couple of ballots and finished as the second nominee for rookie of the year.

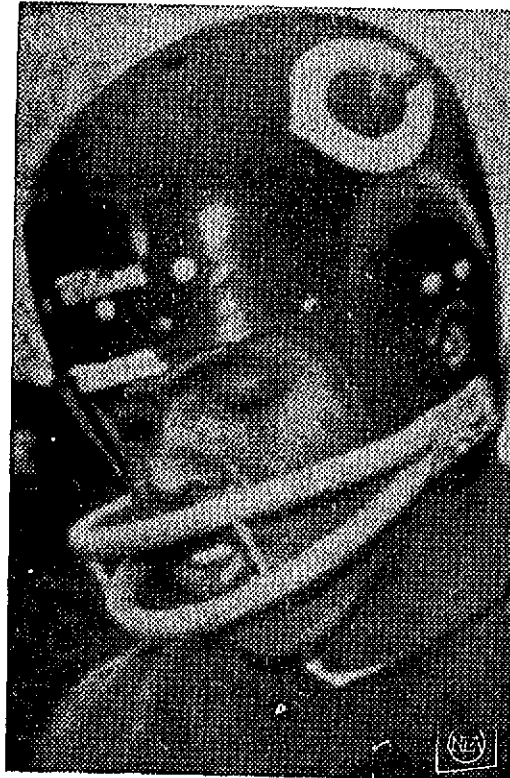

Fullbacks Tucker Frederickson of New York and Ken Willard of San Francisco tied for third.

The Bert Bell Award, named for the late commissioner of the NFL who served from 1946 through 1959, will be presented to Sayers at the Pro Bowl game in Los Angeles.

Although he didn't play regularly until the fourth game of the season, Sayers already set a new NFL record for most touchdowns scored. He broke the game record for combined net yardage by advancing the ball 336 yards against the 49ers. His six touchdowns in the same game tied the league record held by Ernie Nevers and Dub Jones.

A coach like Allie Sherman of the Giants already approves him as a finished runner.

"He doesn't waste any moves," said

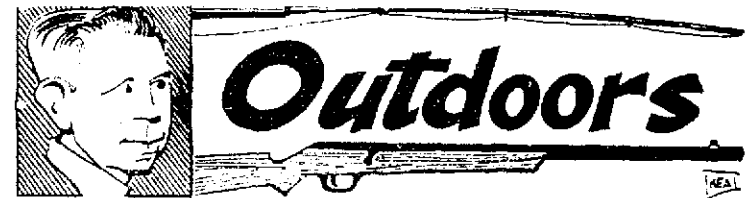

Gale Sayers

Sherman, "unlike most rookies. He goes hard for those first four yards and then he starts looking for the big breakthrough."

"He also has tremendous acceleration." Last year's winner of the award was also a versatile halfback, Charley Taylor of the Washington Redskins.

The voting by the coaches, on a 5-3-1 basis, went as follows: Sayers, 66; Butkus, 33; Willard and Frederickson, 13; Roy Jefferson (Pittsburgh) 1.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

I'm not nuts about fishing tournaments. This has nothing to do with the fact that I failed to win the recent Stuart (Fla.) Light Tackle Sailfish Tournament.

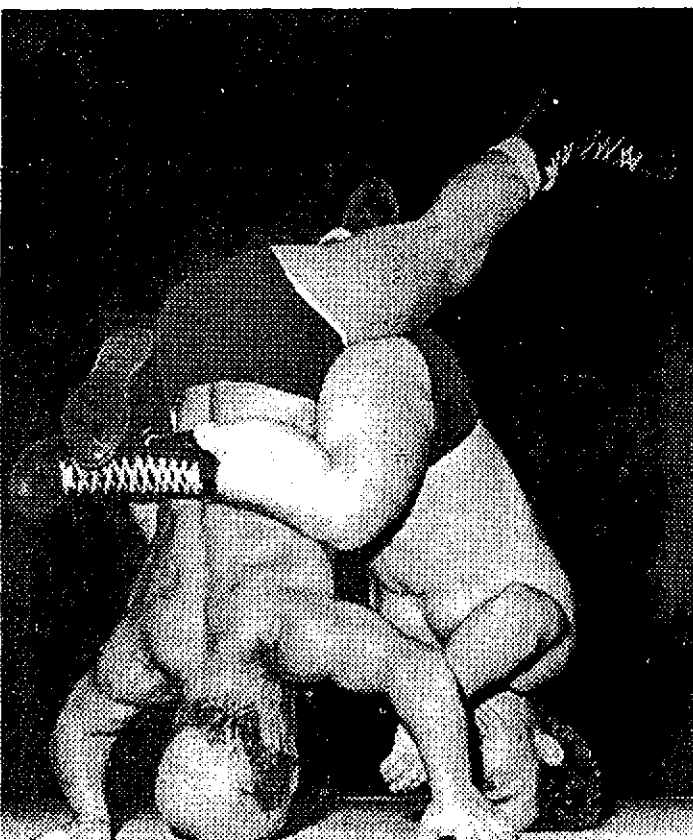

Actually, I had some success at Stuart. I caught just about everything that moves in those waters—off Florida's east coast—but only sailfish counted. In four days, I had a shot at three of them. I landed two, but, since it took nine to win, I was well back in the pack.

This wasn't exactly a disgrace, because it was a fairly affert pack. Most of the competitors had their own boats, and one of them—a beauty of a 55-footer—reportedly cost $250,000. But neither boats nor their captains mean a thing at Stuart, which is one reason I approve of this particular tournament. In many competitions, the angler who wins is the one with the best skipper. As soon as a fish takes the bait, the captain backs down so fast he all but scoops up the poor fish. At Stuart things are different. The rules state that the engines must be put in neutral when a fish is hooked. This places the burden on the angler and that is where it should be.

On the final day I hit a big sailfish that was easily an eight-footer. This would have made it the biggest fish in the tournament. But, after the better part of an hour I lost him when, I believe, his tail caught in the double line and wore it through at the knot.

For a fellow who does a great deal of fishing, competition offers an exciting change of pace. But for the casual angler, or one who seeks relaxation, tournaments are simply too intense. The fishing may be fair, but it is also frantic. I prefer fun, but then all losers do.

The Only Stereotype Is Winning

Duke Keeps It 'Simple but Flawless'

(Second in a Series)

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DURHAM, N.C. (NEA) — At times you don't know whether to admire Vic Bupas' intensity or to be frightened by it.

A few years ago, he had 25 speaking engagements in one month.

"I had to stop," he said. "I reached a point where I felt my health might be affected."

So Vic Bupas stopped. But his popularity grew and today he is one of the most respected young men in North Carolina.

The respect comes not because Duke University has winning basketball teams but because the man who directs this team does it in such a novel way.

Industrialists around the state, impressed by his success, are constantly trying to persuade Bupas to address meetings of their sales and management staffs.

Bupas tries to comply when possible. "You might say these are the ONES I get up for," he said, smiling. "Usually they ask me to correlate motivation in athletics with motivation in business."

Actually, I don't find much difference between success in sports and success in business. We are in a highly competitive society. We can't hide from winning."

Bupas has received several business offers in recent years, but the lure of basketball remains too strong right now.

"Some of the offers have been very tempting," he admitted. "Only instinct has told me not to take them."

Actually, Bupas is just being realistic because this is the year Duke has its best chance to win a national collegiate championship.

Two years ago, the Blue Devils were close, losing to UCLA in the finals at Kansas City.

But this season, Duke already has beaten the defending champion Bruins twice and the confidence gained from those wins might be the catalyst needed to make a championship club.

"The most important thing we gained from those two wins," Bupas said, "is that we are now a cohesive unit. This team has realized that you need everybody to get the job done."

Duke's biggest plus is its balance. In the backcourt, Bob Verga and Steve Vacendak, the captain, have good speed. Verga is the club's leading scorer and Vacendak is the playmaker in addition to being a double-figure scorer.

A pair of 6-6 forwards, Jack Marin and Bob Riedy, give Duke better than average rebounding, but while Marin is a proven scorer (19.1 last year), Riedy tends to be somewhat inconsistent.

The center is Mike Lewis, an aggressive 6-7 sophomore, who can rebound and score but has a tendency to foul.

When Lewis gets in trouble, Bupas goes to 6-8 Warren Chapman who literally is a "sleeper." The kid looks completely unconscious until he steps on the court.

Ron Wendelin, a sophomore with unusual poise, is the No. 1 backcourt substitute and played very well against UCLA. The first seven men are proof of Bupas' thoroughness when it comes to scouting.

Marin, Riedy and Vacendak are Pennsylvanians; Verga is from Sea Girt, N.J.; Lewis from Missoula, Mont.; Chapman from Houston, and Wendelin from Peoria, Ill.

"Duke is a school that sells itself," Bupas said. "It has an academic tradition and is almost as national an institution as the service academies."

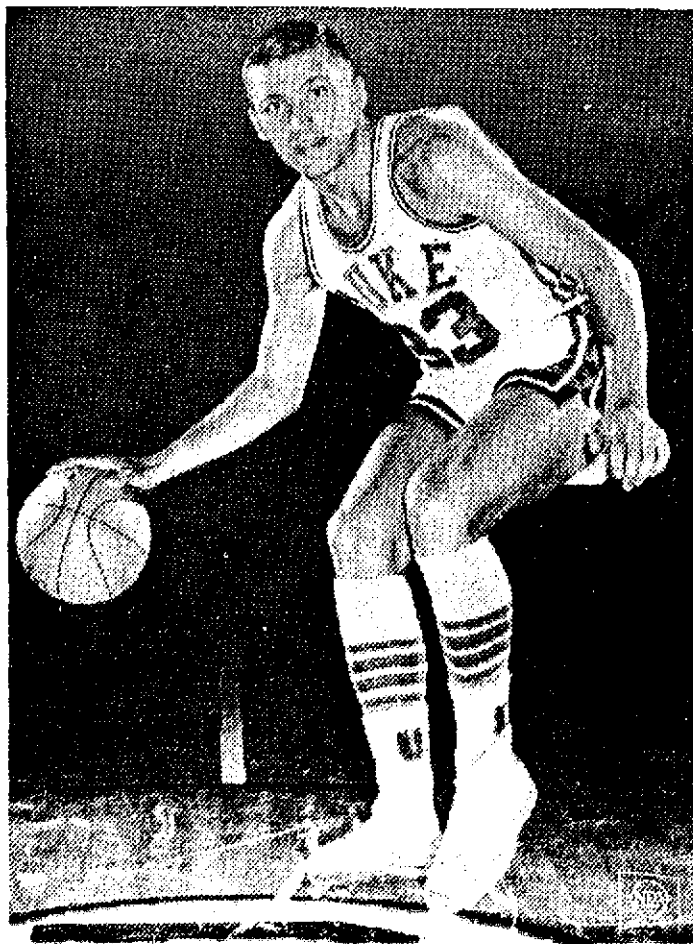

Bupas, however, must get the credit for molding these youngsters, with such varied high school backgrounds into such a compatible club.

"The amazing thing," says Bucky Waters, Bupas' former assistant and now head coach at West Virginia, "is that his teams play simple, fundamental basketball and the execution is flawless."

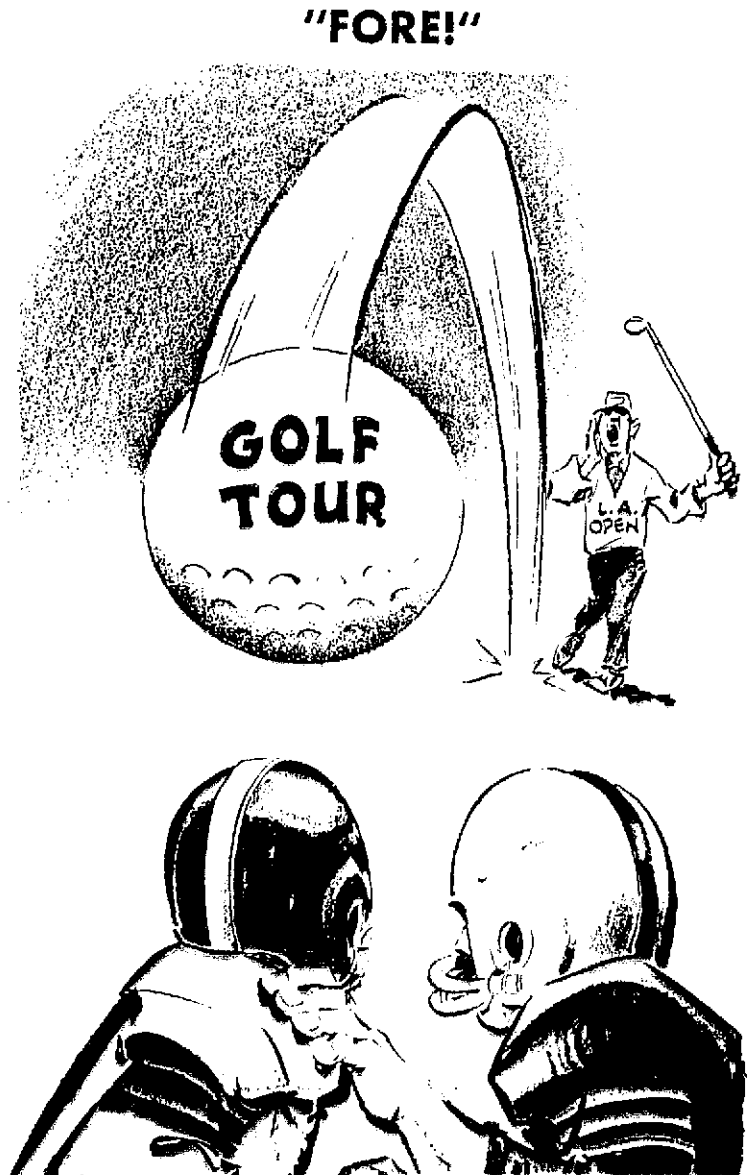

"Other than that there is no stereotype of a Duke basketball team."

Except winning

Get More From Daily Newspaper

For greater information and more enjoyment in reading your daily newspaper, a journalism professor has suggested these "Ten Commandments for Readers":

- Read your newspaper fully each day. Make it a habit.
- Don't be headline-happy. Heads are just the menu; you must eat the food itself to get a satisfying meal.
- Don't be a page-one happy. Your most interesting items could be on the inside pages.
- Don't be one-subject happy. Sticking only to sports, comics or society news is like picking up pennies and ignoring dollars.
- Be a fact-seeker. Get the facts from the news column, then read the comment of editorial writers and columnists. You may find that you are the better thinker (at least in your own opinion).
- Read with both eyes. Note the qualifying words and also "who says so." Don't take an accusation for a conviction, rumor for fact, or confuse plans with accomplishments.
- Don't be afraid to weigh opinions in complete conflict with your own.
- Don't be a reading coward. Don't be afraid to weigh opinion.
- Get out of any reading rut you may have fallen into and read at least one thing a day completely apart from your normal interest, to give yourself a mental jog.
- Plan your shopping and buying at home with the help of the advertising columns of your daily newspaper.
- Relax and enjoy the fun every day. There is a lighter side of life and your newspaper covers it - so give yourself a break and join in the enjoyment.

A Question In Arithmetic
Looking over Federal employment statistics, the Senate Committee on Reduction of Non-essential Expenditures finds that in the last 10 years the number of Federal civilian employees has increased 20 per cent to 2,488,365 persons on that payroll. But in dollars and cents it has climbed 70 per cent - from $9.5 billion to $16.2 billion. (And that was before the recent raise was put through.)

That is approximately one Federal employee for every 7.5 citizens. Thirty years ago, the ratio was about one for every 215 citizens. The percentage gain of the Federal payroll has vastly outpaced the growth in population - and the rate of pay has increased correspondingly. How long will it take, at that rate, for EVERYBODY to be working for the government, and consequently rich, of course? - Nashville (Tenn.) Banner

Interstate 29 Plans Studied
NEWPORT, Ark. (AP) - A meeting is scheduled here Saturday to draft plans for an extension of Interstate 29 from Kansas City through Newport to Memphis.

The proposed route of the highway begins near the Canadian border south of Winnipeg, Canada, and ends at Kansas City.

There has been expressed interest to connect Interstate 29 some interest in two other New Orleans, one through western Arkansas and the other through Harrison, Little Rock and Pine Bluff.

Ozarks Fund Project Is Under Study

By ED SHEARER

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Officials in Arkansas continue to study the act under which the state hopes to get federal funds for development of the Ozarks, but they will keep a close eye on the '88th Congress which convenes in Washington on Monday.

Most of Arkansas' hopes of attaining the funds lie in the Ozark Regional Development Association which was organized last year aiming at a federal development project similar to the recent Appalachia program.

"There have been no further developments," said Ted Morley, head of the Arkansas Planning Commission. "But we've been working on it and studying the act under which funds would be given," Morley said this week.

The December meeting of the association at Fort Smith brought offerings of 103 projects from area directors in Arkansas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Bowie County, Tex.

Officials have said all along that improved roads in the Ozarks region would take precedent over other projects. Morley said roads and the development of tourist attractions were prime aspects of the program plus "permanent development of any kind that will furnish permanent jobs."

Eugene P. Foley, the assistant secretary of commerce for economic development, told the association that he would not be surprised if Ozarka were the first regional development plan to be approved by President Johnson.

Foley also directs the Economic Development Administration, which is charged with channeling business and industry into depressed areas through a $3.25 billion five-year program of public works loans and grants, business loans and technical and planning assistance.

The Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965 authorizes federal aid for regions whose economies are lagging behind the nation's overall prosperity.

The governors of Arkansas, Missouri and Oklahoma have been asked to submit to Foley recommendations on establishment of the Ozarks region to be eligible for aid.

To be eligible for planning and administrative assistance, the region must have lagged behind the nation in economic development, based on the following conditions:

Unemployment substantially above the national rate; median family income significantly below the national median; level of housing, health and educational facilities substantially below the national level; economy traditionally dominated by only one or two industries now in a state of long-term decline.

The World Is Certainly Full of Snobs But Few of Them Realize It or Will Admit It

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Are you a snob?

The world is full of snobs, but few of them realize it or admit it. Most snobs are hypocrites. They don't want to be recognized as snobs. It is the rare snob indeed who faces up to the fact of his snobbery — and enjoys it.

Snobbery is a very human attribute, but just how much of a snob are you?

Well, you are probably just about 100 per cent snobbish if most of the following things are true about you:

You'd try to romance a waitress or hawker girl but never think of marrying one.

You'd date the boss's daughter but never marry her either, for fear someone would think you were a social climber.

When talking about your ancestors, you always mention the one who came over on the Mayflower — and never mention the one who was hanged as a horse thief.

You never read a book that makes the best-seller list.

When you are alone in an elevator and hear footsteps approaching, you quickly push the up button so you won't have to ride with a stranger.

You fawn on those you think are your superiors and frown on those you think are your inferiors.

You never order corned beef and cabbage for lunch because it is supposed to be a vulgar dish.

When a friend confides to you that his son has just been thrown out of a public school, you brag that your son has just been thrown out of a private one.

You are proud of having won a Phi Beta Kappa key in college but you never wear it in public because you are afraid it will make you look ostentatious.

Fairview Wins Sugar Game From Bobcats

By LARRY DON WRIGHT

Hope Star Sports Editor
The Hope Bobcats having a very poor night shooting were knocked off, 64-59, by the consistent Fairview Cardinals in the first District 4AA contest of the season last night at Camden.

The lead swayed back and forth throughout the game but Fairview was on top when the buzzer sounded. In fact with only one minute and twenty seconds left to play the score was tied.

It was the third meeting of the two teams this year but the others were not in conference play. Each team had won one of the previous games.

The first quarter got under way with every thing ticking perfectly. At the end of the period Hope led by 2, 15-13, supported mainly by the 11 point effort of forward Dennis Ramsey.

But things began to look rough through the remainder of the half as the Cats fell behind by 2. Even at that point it was plain to see that win or lose the outcome was being decided by Hope's consistency from the field.

At the half Fairview had made 50 per cent of their field goals compared to 30 per cent by Hope.

The third quarter saw an even battle resulting in a 49-49 deadlock entering the final stanza.

A rugged last quarter wore away into a 57-57 tie with less than a minute and a half remaining. The Cardinals tallied next though and a couple of fouls accredited to the Bobcats put the game on ice for the Camden boys as time ran out.

Ramsey was high point for the game with 25. Teammates Ronnie Ingram and Eddie Aslin had 13 and 6 points respectively, while Larry May, Bobby McGill, and David Griffin pushed in 3 apiece.

The Bobcats play their first district home game tonight at Jones Field House when they face the Smackover Buckaroos. It will be preceded by the junior boys game which will begin at 7 p.m.

Representative Asks a Third Term

Infirmary at Little Rock, Ark., B. G. Hendrix of Sebastian County and Rep. Clovis Bryant of Crawford County will seek their third terms this year.

Hendrix, 43, of Fort Smith, and Bryant, 51, of Van Buren, filed as candidates Thursday. They are seeking positions in District 12 composed of Sebastian and Crawford counties.

W. E. (Buck) Flecker, 70, of near Lonoke, filed as a Democratic candidate for state senator for the Pulaski and Lonoke counties districts. Flecker is a former member of both House and Senate.

Metal Prices Worldwide, Not Private

NEW YORK (AP) — The nascent metal prices are worldwide, not just a private quarrel between the U.S. government and the producers of steel, copper and aluminum.

Prices of copper are soaring on world markets, ignoring the rollback which Washington got from domestic firms that tried to raise theirs.

The price of American-produced copper stays at 36 cents a pound. But foreign producers have boosted the price on the world market to 42 cents. And in London metal dealers were asking 71¢ cents a pound for spot delivery Tuesday and 68¢ cents for delivery three months from now — both record high quotations. The dealers could ask that because a worldwide shortage makes quickly needed copper hard for manufacturers to find.

In both London and Singapore the price of spot tin advanced again Tuesday. Shortages here, too, have sent prices soaring in recent weeks.

The move of three American makers of structural steel to raise its price brought quick retaliation from Washington. But it caused just about as much interest abroad, where steel mills have been finding the American market ever more accessible. U.S. imports of steel rose sharply in 1965. Still higher prices here might give European and Japanese mills even more of a foothold in the booming American market.

And both at home and abroad the makers of materials that can compete with structural steel in the big construction boom foreseen for 1966 are assessing what opportunities a price rise in steel would afford them to expand the markets for steel substitutes.

The three U.S. companies raising prices were: Bethlehem Steel with around 40 per cent of the industry's capacity to produce structural steel; Inland Steel with around 10 per cent; and Colorado Fuel & Iron with about 4 per cent.

To fight the price hike announcement, the U.S. government ordered its purchasing agents for defense and civilian projects to buy their steel from companies holding to the old and lower price. The government buys about one-fourth of the structural steel produced. Last year about 12 per cent of such steel used in the United States was imported.

Just as watchful as Washington were the makers of cement, prestressed and reinforced concrete, since their products have been giving steel competition in the building field. Copper, aluminum, glass and plastics also have invaded many steel markets, although few that structural steel calls its own.

Aluminum producers also had a run-in with Washington when they tried to raise the basic price of their metal, citing rising production costs and a growing world demand. But the government had a huge stockpile of aluminum built up as defense measure. And talk of releasing tons of aluminum from the stockpile sent American producers scurrying to rescind the price rise.

Even so, producers of aluminum products have since said that the steadily rising world demand for the metal is likely to see future price increases in aluminum end-products here, even if the basic metal is unchanged.

The problem of holding down price increases at home is complicated by the stresses of the domestic economy — it is made doubly difficult by the world-wide shortages of some metals and rising demand for them.

Mass of Cold Arctic Air Is Spreading

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A mass of bitterly cold Arctic air covered one-third of the country today, sending temperatures again to 30 degrees below zero.

Zero or below temperatures were reported over wide sections from the northern Appalachians southwestward to northern Missouri, then in a sweeping arc upward to Idaho.

The early morning's lowest reading was 30 degrees below zero at Hibbing, Minn. Some reporting points in northern Iowa had readings around -20.

Show fell in brief squalls along the southern and eastern shores of Lake Michigan, Lake Erie and Lake Ontario.

At Buffalo, N.Y., there was a snowfall of four inches, and South Bend, Ind., had a three-inch fall.

Snow flurries fell as far south as northern and eastern Kentucky.

There were clear skies from the Mississippi Valley and the Great Plains to the southwest, but rain fell along the Pacific Coast from Northern California to Washington.

Local Couple Tells of Life and Experience in Japan Where They Spent 3 Years

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Star Feature Writer
Radoslav A. Tsanoff: Goethe wrote of "the Americas of the mind." In the artist's life of the imagination there is vision and adventure and the discovery of new worlds. And in this great vision we are privileged to share.

It was our privilege to share in a look at some eastern world culture recently in a visit at the Lytle Moore home. Mrs. Moore and her husband, Maj. Moore, retired, spent three years in Japan where he was with the Special Services division of the U. S. Army. Some of the time they lived in the northern part of the country and the rest in the area near Tokyo.

The local woman became enamored with different types of oriental objects and brought a number of them back to the States when she returned home.

Stepping into her home one finds a pleasant blending of the East and the west with low western style chairs and divan grouped around an area of hand-carved carved tables from Japan, and several examples of Japanese objects d'art can be seen on the walls and in a cabinet - desk. What appears to be a large coffee table is, in fact, an oriental dining table less than two feet in height. Of course, since the diners are expected to sit on the floor, the height is ideal. We must hasten to add that meals are not served that way in the Moore's home.

In one part of the living room and several other rooms in the home one sees large two-drawer or three-drawer chests. They are made of wood that is quite pretty, and there is an old tradition that has been handed down for centuries concerning them. The large chests are the equivalent of the western-style hope chests in purpose, though their construction differs by having drawers instead of opening from the top.

When a Japanese couple becomes the parents of a girl, a kedi tree is planted by their home. When it has grown enough to provide sufficient wood for

4,000 Cases on Court Docket

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The executive secretary of the state Judicial Department says he has asked three judges to serve in Pulaski Circuit Court from March through May to help clear more than 4,000 cases awaiting decisions.

C. R. (Dick) Hule said others might be assigned to Pulaski in the fall. He said the three would serve in rotation rather than together. Hule said he would release the judges' names as they accept the job.

Pulaski Circuit Court has three judges.

Red Envoy Enroute to Hanoi

TOKYO (AP) — The Soviet Union and the United States carried diplomatic maneuvering on Viet Nam to the Far East today as Soviet troubleshooter Alexander Shelepin left for Hanoi and American envoy W. Averell Harriman arrived in Tokyo.

Shelepin took off from Moscow with top experts on military production and rocketry. The Kremlin apparently hopes to outbid Red Chinese influence in the North Vietnamese capital with more economic and military assistance.

Some Western governments were hopeful also that Shelepin would encourage Ho Chi Minh's regime to negotiate for peace in Viet Nam. He is the No. 2 man in the Soviet Communist party under Chairman Leonid F. Brezhnev.

This theory got a boost Tuesday when Albania, Peking's mouthpiece in the Soviet-Chinese dispute, charged Shelepin's real aim to help the United States make a deal on Viet Nam. Chinese Foreign Minister Chen Yi also accused the Soviets of giving the United States a free hand in Viet Nam by keeping the peace elsewhere.

Shilina will leave for Moscow Jan. 16.

Cong Forces in Laos Smashed by Bombers

By JOHN T. WHEELER

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — American warplanes have unleashed a massive bombing campaign in Laos as North Viet Nam, taking advantage of the U.S. bombing pause, pours men and equipment toward South Viet Nam, informed sources said today.

Up to 300 U.S. planes a day are dropping nearly 1,000 tons of bombs and rockets on Communist water-borne traffic and trucks moving down newly constructed roads, these sources said.

North Viet Nam has been spared air raids since Dec. 24 after President Johnson ordered a bombing pause in an attempt to get peace negotiations started on the Vietnamese war.

Photo reconnaissance planes continue to seek out Communist troop movements and missile installations in the north.

The bombing pause has caused grave concern in some military circles here. These circles say the pause was ordered at a time when nearly two regiments of North Vietnamese regulars and hundreds of tons of supplies were rolling down the Ho Chi Minh Trail from North Viet Nam through Laos and Cambodia to South Viet Nam each month.

Before the pause, the key-stone of American air tactics was to catch Communist units and supply columns before they could get out of North Viet Nam. Bombing went on around the clock.

It is not clear to many observers here whether the bombing in Laos stopped during the Christmas cease-fire.

No American or Vietnamese official spokesmen would comment on the Laotian situation. The bombings, however, long have been an open secret.

Communist-controlled portions of Laos have been photographed until, one source said, there is not one square inch that is not recorded on film in American intelligence files.

Reports are that Communist troops and supplies are under day and night air attack almost as soon as they hit the funnel at the North Vietnamese border with Laos.

Commenting on the bombing in Laos, one source said: "To do any less would be madness. We simply cannot let the Communists arrive in South Viet Nam with all that stuff intact."

The pause in bombing the north coincides with the peak period of possible infiltration because the mountains now are enjoying the dry season.

Nubians Are Settling to a New Life

By ALY MAHMOUD

ASWAN, Egypt (AP) — Their exodus over, the Nubians of upper Egypt are at last succeeding in settling down to a new way of life at Aswan.

Uprooted from a beloved homeland as old as history, more than 70,000 Nubians now seem convinced they have to adapt themselves to new conditions and overcome homesickness. Their once sacred villages now lie beneath Lake Nasser, rising behind the Aswan Dam.

The Nubians, whose forefathers once invaded and ruled haraonic Egypt, consider themselves a purer people than their fellow Aswanis. Tall, slim and tough, Nubians pride themselves on a glorious history and old traditions. Even when they go to Cairo and Alexandria to work as porters or servants they demonstrate this sense of pride. They are known for their cleanliness and honesty.

Late in 1964, the Egyptian government mobilized steamers and sailboats to start the Nubian exodus, perhaps the most dramatic in this area since Moses' flight with the Israelites from the Egyptian Nile delta to Palestine.

Nubians were reluctant to leave. Officials had to convince them that their land was doomed forever as Lake Nasser filled for 314 miles behind the dam.
